342 MONTHS FOR 0

"RELIED ON PROMISES"

Began on Farm at 12 Years Old, and Was Thrown Out at 45, When Unable to Work Says Plaintiff.

Charles E. Brace filed suit this morning in the office of the circuit clerk for one of the most unusual cases which has come before that court in some years. The plaintiff says that he came from Iowa in 1879 to work for Charles Patterson when 12 years old. Mr. Patterson lives about two miles south of Orrsburg.

At that time he alleges that Patterson agreed to pay him wages as soon as he was able to do the full work of a farm hand. At 18 he was such a full fledged hired man, but still no money was paid. For twenty-seven more years he worked without receiving any compensation except board and clothes, Brace says.

In November, 1912, when he had become very deaf and was no longer able to work, Patterson drove him out of his home, according to the petition. Therefore he asks for $6,840, or $20 a month for the 342 months he worked without pay. Interest at 6 per cent from November, 1912, and the costs of the case are also asked.

The unusualness of the charge promises to make this one of the leading cases in interest which will come before the January term of court. Ellis G. Cook is attorney for the plaintiff.

Attachment On Note Asked.

Another suit filed yesterday will come before the January term. It is a suit on attachment for note. The Bank of Buchanan county, in St. Joseph alleges that $3,000 was loaned to J. Edmond Bilby and Louisa J. Bilby, which they have refused to pay, although giving their note.

The defendants are non-residents of Missouri, so attachment is asked for property which they own in this county.

Tarpaulin Affidavits Made.

Affidavits against George Sigler and Charles Hyatt were filed with the prosecuting attorney today by Wayne Judah and George Lucas, owners of the tarpaulin and tools which the men are alleged to have stolen and which were found in their possession.

"KRUPPS" WIN 17-11.

Howitzers Couldn't Get the Range, as Well as the 42-Centimeters.

The "Krupps" gunners in the second game of the Normal basket ball tournament yesterday afternoon showed that they were better at getting the range than were the Howitzers, under the captaincy of Guard Hunter. This is the second game for Lisle Hanna's team, as they defeated the five of Harold Sawyers Friday afternoon in the first game.

Wednesday at 4:15 the Howitzers and the Krupps will clash again. Hanna is the captain of the Krupps and Hunter the captain for the Howitzers. Hunter and Pickens qualified by good playing for some iron crosses.

"LOVEY MINE" GOOD SHOW

The German "goose step" is the funniest part about the home talent film, "Lovey Mine," which was shown at the Fern theater last night for the first time. The "plot" of the picture is couples in all stages of life, representing that love continues from little "kids" to old age.

Amy Clark and Fred Lewis as the old age stage were particularly good. George Palfreyman and Miss Blanche Shipps march down the Wabash station as the morning train comes in, one of the clearest and best of the scenes. All of the settings are local and a credit to F. R. Marcell, photographer.

Miss Besse Scott sings during the film and music is furnished by Maulding's orchestra.

DERBIES FOR H. S. BOYS

Sale of Stiff Hats for "Two Bits" Starts Craze—To Wear Them at Games and On "Pie" Nights.

You can blame all of this high school "derby" hat business upon the Toggery Shop. They were overstocked on a certain kind of stiff hat and advertised them for two-bits.

And forthwith every high school chap who had cherished a secret longing to enclose his brains in felt ever since the day when he pushed his feet down through the first long trousers jammed into that store.

Close to two dozen were fitted and the quarters thrown upon the counter within an hour yesterday. Only two of the hats, which are the flat variety of the popularity of two years ago, remain in the store. And what a compliment to the high school boys that those two are left.

For be it known that no boy in the high school was big headed enough to wear them. One is 7½ and the other 7¾. But wearing the hats went to the heads of some who were fitted within a few hours. For instance:

"E." Phillip Colbert made a "wager" of one real nickel jitney that he could find at least one hair pin in a walk around the square. He was "called" by Donald Roberts. Verne Pickens held stakes and went along as judge.

The hairpin was found, but "Phil" lost his five pennies because Roberts found the hair dresser's accessory. If "Phil" had been an experienced sportsman he would have worded that bet differently.

The boys will wear the hats at athletic contests and on "pie" nights. Some say that all this "foolishment" comes from too much of a pie diet.

Prof. W. J. Osburn, head of the psychology department of the State Normal school, will speak at Lasher school house next Thursday night, November 18, in the third of the rural lecture course which that community is enjoying. R. A. Kinnaird and Wesley A. Blagg have addressed the community before.

The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock. Members of the Tarpley family orchestra will give music before the lecture.

On account of the engine on passenger train No. 11, on the Wabash, breaking down at Chillicothe, that train did not arrive in Maryville this morning until 10:30, being four and a half hours late.

TURKEY IS HIGHER

WET WEATHER CAUSED SCARCITY OF THANKSGIVING BIRD.

RABBITS ARE PLENTIFUL

And It's Patriotic to Destroy Brer Bunny for He Is an Agricultural Pest.

Just as we were all thinking that the wet weather this summer was a thing of the past and had really forgotten about it in the glorious autumn, the "perfectly lovely" days as the girls tell us, along comes an announcement which bowls us over and brings back all the pain and anguish of those dready days and months of drizzling and precipitation.

For most of the little "gobble-gobbles" got wet feet last summer, took cold, and then there was a funeral. And the mortality of turkeys has been so high that the price will be higher. Butchers and poultry men here say that the price will be four or five cents more than last year, which means that 27 cents a pound will be about the average.

But that need not break up the big dinner. Chickens are plentiful and will be about 18 cents, and geese at 20 cents a pound. Farmers who have been asked about the supply of gobblers shook their heads sadly and said that the supply was short.

But, cheer up, get your chin off your vest! "Bunnies" are thicker than ever this year, and will be sold dressed at a very reasonable rate. A good Thanksgiving meat for twenty-five cents, for instance. Why be slaves to tradition which says that one must have turkey?

When that custom was started all that father had to do was to shoulder his blunderbus and go shoot a wild fowl. Why not make Brer Rabbit the national Thanksgiving day meat, when pa can sling his pump gun or repeater through the hollow of his arm and go get several along any country road.

And it would seem good economy too. For the cotton tails eat up lots of garden stuff; they nibble the bark off of young fruit trees in winter, in fact they are rated a pest in most agricultural communities. Some good patriotic citizen might start a "Rabbit for Thanksgiving Dinner" fad.

And the one who started it would probably give in on the night of the 24th and order a Turkey.

TO UNITE PRAYER SERVICES

Rev. W. M. Case Will Tell of His Work Among Mountaineers of North Carolina When a Student.

The prayer meeting congregations of the First Methodist and First Christian churches will unite tomorrow night with the First Presbyterian church, when their pastor, Rev. William Moll Case, will tell of his work among the mountaineers of North Carolina.

It is probable that the First Baptist church will also join in the meeting. The Buchanan Street Methodists have planned for the organization of its "Go Forward" campaign and will be unable to attend.

Mr. Case worked during the summer of 1904 and a month in the winter of 1906 while a student in Yale. A classmate and two University of Virginia men worked with him under H. D. Gallaudet, son of the president of the Gallaudet School for the Deaf in Washington. The leader is now pastor of the First Congregational church in Bridgeport, Conn.

The work was done in Madisor county, North Carolina, twenty miles up into the mountains.

WILL SELECT CITY

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE ALREADY GATHERING.

IN WASHINGTON DEC. 7

Leaders of Party Much Interested in Bomb Plots and Wilson's Attitude on One-Term Plank in Platform.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The advance guard of the national Democratic committee, which meets here December 7 to select the time and place for the 1916 Democratic convention, began to arrive here today.

In the group were a number of congressmen. The chief topic of conversation was the probable attitude of the president toward the one-term plank in the 1912 platform of the Democratic party.

The fight for the convention city lies between St. Louis, Chicago and Dallas, according to indications now.

Bomb Plots Interest Also.

Great interest was shown among the men also in the testimony which is being held today by the department of justice concerning the German bomb plots and the conspiracies to destroy American munition plants.

Dr. Goricar, former Austrian consul at San Francisco, who make startling charges against Teutonic representatives last week, and John R. Rathon publisher of the Providence (R. I.) Journal, in which paper the charges were published, answered questions of federal agents today.

Department officials refused to make known, however, where the conference is taking place.

IF RETREAT INTO GREECE

England and France Want to Be Sure Soldiers Will Not Be Interred—Germans Re-inforce Bulgarians.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

London, Nov. 16.—German troops have arrived in southern Servia to reenforce the hard pressed Bulgarians around Veles. Although they have battled gallantly to open the road to Monastir, the Bulgarians have been checked at every turn.

The fighting has been particularly vicious at Veles. Telovo, which has changed hands five times since the beginning of the war in Servia, is now in the possession of the Serbs.

The Bulgarian hold on Uskub is seriously menaced, but with re-enforcements in the south, the Bulgarians may be able to renew a successful offensive against the allies and Serbs.

That such a thought has occurred to the leaders of the French and English armies is shown by the Athens dispatch, which says that the two general staffs are trying to reach an agreement with the government of Greece by which the status of the Anglo-French soldiers may be known in case they are forced over the border.

Great Britain and France desire that their soldiers shall not be interned and disarmed, and more than mere promises must be given by the king to satisfy the allies.

Submarine Bases Found.

Rome, Nov. 16.—Two bases for the operation of the Teutonic submarines have been found on the coast of Crete, according to the Giornaled. Crete is an island belonging to Greece in the Mediterranean.

$4.50 ROUND TRIP FOR GAME

Pullman Car, Running Through, Will Leave Here Wednesday Night—Special May Go in Morning.

The Wabash has quoted a rate of $4.50 for the round trip to Columbia for the Missouri-Kansas foot ball game and the other festivities of Thanksgiving. A special Pullman will be placed on No. 14, leaving Maryville at 9:45 Wednesday night, November 24. The rate for that is $2 a berth for the round trip and two may occupy each berth.

A special train will be run down the Maryville branch Thursday morning, arriving in Columbia at noon. It will leave Maryville at 5 o'clock Thanksgiving morning, if enough notify the agent here that it is wanted. Otherwise it will start at Stanberry. Prof. C. A. Hawkins of the Normal faculty has charge of the arrangements for the Pullman.

Eighteen, the minimum number for which a car will be brought here, has been secured. A car accommodating thirty or thirty-five can be secured if desired, but it will be necessary for those who wish to go to let Professor Hawkins know at once. The car will run straight through to Columbia, arriving there at 8 in the morning.

It will leave about 9 o'clock that night, arriving in Maryville at 6:05 Friday morning. C. L. Brewer, head of athletics of the University of Missouri, announces that 2,000 more tickets have already been sold than at the game in Columbia two years ago. A crowd of 12,000 is expected.

The victory of Missouri's team last Saturday, with Kansas' defeat at the same time, has increased the hope for a good game.

Charity Board Meets Tonight.

A part of the initiation requirement was that young Graham steal a ride on the blind baggage of a passenger train.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Another meeting of the cabinet was held again today with the question of national defense and preparedness as the topic of discussion.

IT MAY NOT NEED AERATION

No Tests of New Supply of Sand Point Water Have Been Made and Double Pumping is Precautionary.

The new sand points on the east side are giving complete satisfaction and no water will be taken from the river in the future. The flow is good and the quality all right. No tests have been made yet to determine the chemical property of the new supply.

Samples will be sent this week to Kansas City for a test, and it may be possible that aeration will not be necessary. The new supply is being sent through the same process as the old until it is sure that aeration is not needed. This causes two pumpings, and it is hoped that tests will show the new supply free from iron and other impurities which make the old process necessary.

VENIZELOS' WITHDRAWAL FROM ELECTION HARD BLOW TO ALLIES

ENGLAND WON'T USE ANY CONSCRIPTION

Asquith Announces That It is No Longer Considered Necessary—Bitter Cold On Every Front.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Athens, Nov. 16.—Former Premier Venizelos has abandoned all efforts to force Greece into the war on the side of the allies.

He made this clear in an announcement today in which he said that his followers in the Liberal party would probably take no active part in the general election for the chamber of deputies, which is to be held December 19.

This news comes as a hard blow to the allies, whose hope had been that the king and his supporters would be overthrown. The strength of the Greek king and the followers of Constantine is thus shown.

Cold Weather at All Points.

REED FOR SENATOR.

In all the Democratic rally meetings held during the months of October and November, Senator James A. Reed has been a leading figure. He has been enthusiastically received at all these conventions and his speeches ring with the laudations of President Wilson and the national administration. His exceptional powers of oratory and logic and his ability and resourcefulness in debate immediately brought him to the front along with that other distinguished Missouri Senator, Wm. J. Stone, both of whom are recognized as leaders in oratory and debate in the senate.

Senator Reed did the heavy work on several of the special commissions to delve into unlawful monopoly. He was a prime mover that put the dynamite under trust rottenness that caused the explosion of their disgraceful methods in the control of corrupt political machinery which grew up in the republican party under the system of protecting and legislating for the special interests at the expense of the people. He is a ceaseless worker—the harder the problem the better he loves to work at it. Sen. Kern, the Democratic leader in the Senate, speaking of him said: "It is claimed by some that at times he is against the Democratic organization. Nothing could be further from the truth. The fact is, he is some times ahead in the lead. He is one of the most useful, able and influential members of the Senate. There is no man in the Senate whom the opposition to Democratic policies and principles so greatly fear."

The above is a most worthy commendation of the junior senator by the Senate leader. We have confidence in the senator that he has conscientiously performed his duty to the best of his ability and the people appreciate the splendid work he has done as heretofore outlined, and hence we are impelled to give the senator our support. We believe that his record as a first termer and the splendid work that he has accomplished entitles him to be his own successor and should appeal to the democracy of the state as entitling him to a re-nomination without question.—Chillicothe Constitution. . .

E. E. Williams and Dr. F. C. Wallis went to St. Joseph this morning to take some degrees at the fall convocation of the Scottish Rite.

STATE POULTRY SHOW FREE

Joplin Will Entertain Missouri Association Exhibit and Admit Public To Increase Interest.

Poultry breeders will have an exceptional opportunity at the Missouri State Poultry Show this year to place their fowls before a very large number of people who are just getting into the poultry work.

Through co-operation with the Commercial Club of Joplin, the Missouri State Poultry Association has decided to throw the show room doors open to the general public, and the Commercial Club has guaranteed to furnish a building suitable for housing 5,000 birds, and also will pay part of the operating expenses.

This arrangement has resulted from influence brought to bear by some of the leading poultrymen of that community, who state that the free admission will result in attracting thousands of people from their trade territory, which is supplied with numerous steam and interurban lines running in all directions.

The same poultrymen believe that the free admission will result in developing the poultry industry in that field, to such an extent that the gross income will exceed the output of the mines in Jasper county. Wheat is the largest wealth producer of Jasper county farms, but the combined city and farm poultry flocks produce a greater wealth than the wheat crop. Unfortunately large numbers of the farms have only mongrel fowls, and no doubt the exhibition of several thousand beautiful pure fowls will exert a strong influence on the visitors to the poultry show to dispose of their mongrel flocks and introduce some variety of pure bred poultry. The exhibitors thus will be in the position of presenting their birds to the largest number of prospective purchasers, at the minimum of expenses.

Every breeder who has any surplus stock for sale during the coming winter, should plan to exhibit some of his or her best specimens at the Missouri State Poultry Show which will be held in Joplin, December 7-11. Entries will close November 29. Premium lists can be had by addressing the Secretary Fred Crosby, Mountain Grove, Mo.

The same cooping arrangements have been made for the coming show as were used at the last show, which was the classiest show ever held west of the Mississippi river, and drew praie from every exhibitor and visitor.

There will be numerous educational features, including a series of chalk talks by Judge W. H. Card, secretary of the Rhode Island Red club of America. Judge Card will pass on all of the Red classes and will be at the show room during the entire week to help any breeders who want information on mating and breeding that variety.

Prof. G. D. Horton, Missouri's poultry doctor, and bacteriologist at the Missouri State Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, will arrange an extensive exhibit showing proper way to treat various diseases and will give several lectures on prevention of poultry diseases. This is a new phase of educational work at poultry shows which will be very interesting and instructive.

Other prominent poultry breeders will give talks each afternoon and evening during the show.

The Missouri State Poultry Association is the largest state poultry association in the world, numbering about 5,000 members, and it is the desire of the association to increase the membership to 7,500 before the first of December, for " in union there is strength," and the larger the membership, the more good the association can do for poultry interests in this state. The annual dues are only 50c per year, and the benefits include listing in the annual year book, chances to compete at about 60 poultry shows in Missouri for special membership prizes, and numerous other features. Fred Crosby, Mountain Grove, is secretary-treasurer, and will be glad to receive new or renewal memberships and answer any communications regarding the association or show.

PARLE'S PHARMACY

FOREIGNER ON OUR TRAVEL.

Says American Distance Needs an Antidote.

"The first thing that impresses me, of course, is what all visitors to your country talk about—your vast distances."

The speaker was H. E. Smith of John Haddon and company, London. He had just come away from the San Francisco Fair and had a fresh impression of the importance we give to travel methods, which are the first thing to impress any visitor to this coutnry.

"We talk of beautiful spots abroad—but can one say that anything here is a 'spot?' However, there are always your automobiles."

The visitor then went on to say that present-day activities justified the old saying that for every condition there was a counteracting influence—and that the influence which cancels distance in this country is our wonderful modes of travel.

"Of all these modes the motor-car commands the greatest admiration and since I have made a study of tires, I feel that many automobiles owe efficiency to Firestone Tires."

POST ORCHARD, LATEST IDEA

Byron Croy of Near Maryville, Writes to the Iowa Homestead on That Subject.

Byron Croy, living northwest of Maryville, has an article in the Iowa Homestead this week. It folows:

Long ago I was fully convinced that a good permanent fence was by far the cheapest but how to obtain this within reason was a problem that I spent many years in solving, and as it has proven out so good in my experience I have no hesitancy in passing it along.

Nature left our own community to get along as best it could in solving the fence question, as she forgot to place any kind of material at our disposal, and as the shipped-in material was very high, while the posts were of a quality that would hardly justify the setting, to say nothing of paying for them.

There was only two ways left to reduce the cost of fencing, and that was to make the fence better and more permanent. While the initial cost might be slightly increased the term of usefulness would be increased in a greater ratio and thereby effect a saving. The other way was to produce as much of it on the place as possible.

I decided to produce the post and buy woven wire of some kind, as that was the only practicable fence for us. With that in mind I prepared a strip of ground sixty feet wide on three sides of my buildings and feed lot, with the open side to the south. This was laid off in rows with a corn lister, and every two feet in each row a one-year-old hedge sprout was planted. The first year they were given four cultivations and two the next year, as their growth was so rapid as to prohibit more cultivation.

It required about ten years' time for those plants to arrive at sufficient size to make posts, and if I allow the protection that I have derived to balance the rent of ground these posts would cost less than 10 cents each when set in the ground.

Roughly speaking, there is about one and three-quarters acres of ground in this plot of land, and it required 8,000 trees to plant it, and they cost 30 cents per hundred. I have followed the practice of cutting out the most crooked ones and letting the straight ones grow for barn poles, crib poles and telephone poles. However, the crooked ones grow near the edge, as the growth is too dense to permit them to grow otherwise.

There are now more posts than plants, as almost every plant made two, either in height or by throwing out two or more sprouts. I have heard a great deal of criticism of hedge, owing to their checking and loosing the staple. That is because they are not properly handled. They should be seasoned for a year or more. Leave them under the shade of a tree and at the end of a year the bark will slip from them and you have and unyielding, that will not split and lost staples, and when properly set a post that is smooth of surface, stiff will last for more than one generation.

When constructing a fence I use hedge post set in the ground five feet and the excavation filled with cement at the corners, using the vertical brace and number nine wire to hold them firm. For the line post I prefer to have every tenth post steel, as this is good insurance against lightning, setting them sixteen feet apart and about thirty inches deep.

At the bottom I place a twenty-inch strand of American wire, six-inch mesh, then leave a five-inch space and stretch another strand of twenty-inch wire, twelve-inch mesh, between these two woven wires. Stretch one barbed wire, also one six inches above the top strand of woven wire and this completes a four-foot fence.

Some will say, "Why not use one forty-eight-inch woven wire?" My method is a little cheaper. Then again if hogs slacken the bottom wire it can be loosened and restretched without bothering with the top. Also the same may be said of the top if it is slackened by cattle or horses, and it makes no difference how long a fence of this type is used and restretched it will never become "baggy" in appearance. Also have the six-inch mesh at the bottom where it is needed and dispenses of that useless weight at the top.

By watching the wire market and anticipating one's needs there are usually times when one can buy wire at quite a saving, and in this way lessen the cost of fencing

Time Copy.

Thirty years ago we used to work on a paper where the editor kept a spindle on which he used to hang things to be used as fillers. This was called time copy. Much of this time copy was devoted to articles abusing the Turks, and particularly their Sultan. It was popular stuff and never got the editor in trouble. Gradually, however, it has undermined the Sultan's popularity and the man who was once the hero of many a tale of the Arabian nights, is now fairly well discredited in the civilized world.

In the newspaper offices now, Good Roads are filling the same useful and distinguished place which once was the Sultan's own—W. A. White.

MISSOURI VERY PARTICULAR

State Maintains Stronger Barriers Against Tubercular Cattle Than Any Other.

In the issue of September 18, 1915, The Country Gentleman, Philadelphia, the most widely circulated and oldest agricultural journal in the world under the general heading, "Live Items about Livestock," and subhead, "Fight on Tuberculosis," says:

"Missouri maintains stronger barriers against the entrance of tuberculous cattle within her borders than any other state in the country. Under regulations inaugurated recently by Dr. D. F. Luckey, head of the veterinary department of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, no cattle can come into the state except for pasturing, feeding or immediate slaughter, without having passed successfully the tuberculin test. The test must be made by a veterinarian approved by the state veterinary department. Missouri does not stop here, however. To impress him with the seriousness of the state's requirements it asks the shipper who sends cattle into the state for pasturing, feeding or immediate slaughter to make this agreement:

'I solemnly swear that the cattle will be used for pasturing, feeding, or immediate slaughter, and not for dairy or breeding purposes, without first having them tuberculin tested by a veterinarian designated by the state veterinarian. I hereby agree to pay to the state veterinarian the sum of five hundred dollars in case of any breach of this agreement.'

"The Missouri veterinary department maintains inspectors at the St. Louis, St. Joseph and Kansas City stockyards to inspect all cattle entering the state from these markets. All animals which appear to be intended for breeding purposes, such as bulls and springer cows, are not permitted to go into Missouri without undergoing the tuberculin test. The state inspectors make a charge of fifty cents a head for the tuberculin test. Test of the agents of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, which are made at markets without charge, are accepted by the state.

"'Missouri must keep tuberculous cattle out,' Doctor Luckey said in commending on his new regulations. 'There have been a few violations of the new rules, partly because some shippers have become accustomed to signing any paper to obtain the free movement of their cattle. If these rules do not work satisfactorily Missouri will insist on the tuberculin test on all cattle entering her borders.'"—From the Missouri Association for Relief and Control of Tuberculosis.

Bought Land in Texas.

J. D. Frank of this city returned Monday evening from a southern business trip through the Trinity valley of East Texas. He reports a very pleasant and profitable trip, and that he has purchased a section of land near Onalaska, in Pork county.

This is the second visit to east Texas Mr. Frank has made during the past month. During the latter part of October he accompanied an excursion to the Trinity valley and became somewhat enthusiastic over the apparent exceptional opportunities for the northern settler, and to be thoroughly satisfied in the matter, he made this last visit unaccompanied by any representatives, going over a different route than usually taken by the regular excursions, which gave him ample opportunity to become acquainted with "both sides of the question."

Mr. Frank reports business conditions as good, and that the fertile timbered belt forming the Trinity valley is attracting a very desirable class of homeseekers.

Mrs. Carrie Miller, who has been the guest at the L. W. Miller home in Barnard, left Monday evening for St. Joseph, where she will be the guest of her son, Dr. Gene Miller.

A WAR ZONE PERIL

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH.

"At last!" breathed my wife, my Bertha, my bride of a month, with a sigh of vast relief.

"It has been hard work," I returned, and glad and relieved as well, "but we seem to be bound for the safety line this time."

For a week our honeymoon had been interrupted. With many other incautious and distressed tourists we had been marooned, so to speak, on an island on the river near the Austrian town of Vasre. We had been practically prisoners and subjected to the most rigorous investigation. Now we had been liberated and taken over to the mainland railroad depot. I noticed that a number of spies kept us well in view on the train bound for the frontier.

All would have been well if it had not been for one of Bertha's whims. Yes, she was capricious, and as well jealous and all that. The crisis of fear and anxiety past, womanlike her mind fell back to matters trivial.

"I saw some lovely grapes on the fruit stand in the waiting room. Won't you get me some?"

And I, of course, hastened to meet her desires. I did not know it, but as I passed from the train platform to the depot Bertha was out of the coach and after me. A sudden appetite for some of those small golden-hued Messina oranges she had noticed supplemented the craving for the grapes. Thus it was that as I reached the waiting room Bertha was not thirty feet away.

I half halted as a quick cry sounded. It proceeded from a fair young girl not more than eighteen years of age. She was penned in at one corner of the room by two soldiers in uniform. It was easy to discern that she was under arrest. She was flashing-eyed, agile, so much the latter that as she lifted out her arms apparently towards me with a wild imploring gesture and the soldiers strove to press her back upon the bench where she had been seated, she nimbly dodged

Her own were instantly about my neck, her lips pressed my own. She was murmuring words of rare endearment in soft Italian. I caught the word "brother." I knew enough of the language to comprehend that she was whispering brokenly an appeal to "send it." What and when I vainly tried to guess out ere the two guardians were with us. They tore her roughly, almost brutally away from me. The crowd gathering around dispersed. I was very much embarassed and hastened on my mission. One of the soldiers pointed to me and spoke to a low-visaged, squint-eyed man at his side. I barely noticed this man then. I recognized him later, as fate willed it, in a signally sensational way.

I procured the fruit I had been sent after and returned to the train. I noted that my wife looked at me strangely. She semed out of breath and flustered. I placed the bag of fruit in her lap and threw off the light overcoat I had been wearing. Just then, discovering my cigarette case empty, I went out to fill it.

As I returned the train was just getting ready to start. As I entered the car I noticed that Bertha held an open sheet of paper in her hand, closely written over. It seemed to puzzle her. Then I saw that the seat directly behind was occupied by the squint-eyed man I had seen with the soldiers. He was leaning forward and staring fixedly at the written page. There was an evil gloating expression to his face I could not construe. Then, as Bertha caught sight of me, with a sudden flush and a perturbed manner she hastily thrust the sheet into her handbag.

Just outside the seat in the aisle was a crumpled envelope. It had apparently contained the sheet Bertha had been reading. I noticed it and intended to secure it, but I took a moment or two to arrange some parcels in the rack. When I looked for it again it was gone.

Some mystery was afloat. The thought had taken possession of my mind and I could not get rid of the idea. Bertha was strangely perverse. She acted like a person laboring under some intense unnatural strain and striving to conceal it. She would not meet my glance. When I started a subject of conversation she was abrupt in her replies.

Then she complained of a headache, turned her face away, using the cushioned top of the car seat as a pillow, and feigned to sleep. I could tell from her nervous movements, however, that she was wide awake.

When we reached terminus those of our group were isolated from the regular passengers and underwent inspection in a room of the depot, each passed along as credentials were exhibited and examined. It chanced that we came last. As I handed our passport to the official inspector, to my surprise a man stepped between us. It was the squint-eyed man. He threw out his hand quickly, quite forcibly, snatched the handbag from my wife's wrist, transferred it to the inspector with some rapid half-whispered words and next caught the arm of my wife, with the words:

"You are under arrest."

I was indignant and aroused. I stepped forward to strike the miscreant, to wrest my wife from his coarse grasp. The inspector put out his hand sternly.

"Desist," he spoke in a precise, impressive way. "It is the law."

"Wherefore?" I challenged hotly.

"The lady is apprehended as a spy," was the calm rejoinder.

"And the proof the letter," explained the squint-eyed man, "the letter in her handbag."

Bertha was quivering with dread. The inspector waved me back as he and the other man led her towards an adjoining room. Its door crashed shut against me. I was overwhelmed with mystery and distress. I paced the floor distractedly. It must have been fully half an hour before the inspector came out.

"The lady is your wife?" he inquired with great gravity.

"Yes," I assented. "Will you explain, please—"

"Seditious correspondence," spoke the official tersely. "She is the possessor of a warning letter from a spy, an Italian woman. I shall have to detain you as well, for the lady declares she cannot even read the letter. She found it in your overcoat, she says—"

"Ha!"

The word burst in a quick gasp unrestrainedly from my lips. Enlightenment flashed into my mind instantaneously. Never had I talked so fast! I knew what detention would mean among these suspicious emissaries of a government prejudiced against all foreigners. Vehemently I insisted that the impetuous greeting of the prisoner back the line had been a clever ruse to cover her secret delivery to me of a letter she hoped I would mail to an accomplice.

I was fortunate in convincing the inspector of the truth of my statements, which he proceeded to verify by telegraph. In fact, he himself told me, as we were allowed to rejoin my fellow refugees, that the possession of the incriminating missive would have meant serious trouble had I not guessed out the solution of the mystery.

"I was jealous, madly jealous! I fancied you knew that woman!" sobbed out my contrite Bertha.

"Poor lady!" I answered. "She was handsome enough to make any woman jealous."

MOTHER! GIVE CHILD "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF TONGUE IS COATED.

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Clean Little Liver and Bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt. 16 * 18

THE WOMEN BUY THE AUTOS

Motor Car Builder Says Cars Which Appeal to Feminine Tastes Sell Most Readily.

"Women are important factors in the purchase of automobiles today," states Elwood Haynes, pioneer automobile builder of Kokomo, Indiana.

"Although the man generally pays the bill, it is the woman who makes the final decision in many cases of purchasing a car. She insists on easy control, easy gear shifting and capability of being throttled down to a slow speed even as low as one mile an hour.

"The car of easy control immediately attracts a woman as one suiting her needs if she is to do any driving. Designers of present day models, looking to this aim, have embodied many ideas that accomplish the desired end.

"Cars that are capable of being throttled down to a low speed are especially meeting favor with the fair sex. The average woman does not care to travel along at an excessive speed, but would rather move leisurely, see her friends and acquaintances and have them see her. Popular decision rules, therefore, in favor of a car having a speed as low as one mile an hour.

"Naturally, easy shifting would appeal to the woman if she is to do any driving. So the woman of today in helping to make a choice of cars is becoming an expert in discrimination and the car that wins her favor must meet her demands."

VOLUME 6. MARYVILLE, MISSOURI, TUESDAY, NOV. 16, 1915. NO. 142.

342 MONTHS FOR 0

"RELIED ON PROMISES"

Began on Farm at 12 Years Old, and Was Thrown Out at 45, When Unable to Work Says Plaintiff.

Charles E. Brace filed suit this morning in the office of the circuit clerk for one of the most unusual cases which has come before that court in some years. The plaintiff says that he came from Iowa in 1879 to work for Charles Patterson when 12 years old. Mr. Patterson lives about two miles south of Orrsburg.

At that time he alleges that Patterson agreed to pay him wages as soon as he was able to do the full work of a farm hand. At 18 he was such a full fledged hired man, but still no money was paid. For twenty-seven more years he worked without receiving any compensation except board and clothes, Brace says.

In November, 1912, when he had become very deaf and was no longer able to work, Patterson drove him out of his home, according to the petition. Therefore he asks for $6,840, or $20 a month for the 342 months he worked without pay. Interest at 6 per cent from November, 1912, and the costs of the case are also asked.

The unusualness of the charge promises to make this one of the leading cases in interest which will come before the January term of court. Ellis G. Cook is attorney for the plaintiff.

Attachment On Note Asked.

Another suit filed yesterday will come before the January term. It is a suit on attachment for note. The Bank of Buchanan county, in St. Joseph alleges that $3,000 was loaned to J. Edmond Bilby and Louisa J. Bilby, which they have refused to pay, although giving their note.

The defendants are non-residents of Missouri, so attachment is asked for property which they own in this county.

Tarpaulin Affidavits Made.

Affidavits against George Sigler and Charles Hyatt were filed with the prosecuting attorney today by Wayne Judah and George Lucas, owners of the tarpaulin and tools which the men are alleged to have stolen and which were found in their possession.

"KRUPPS" WIN 17-11.

Howitzers Couldn't Get the Range, as Well as the 42-Centimeters.

The "Krupps" gunners in the second game of the Normal basket ball tournament yesterday afternoon showed that they were better at getting the range than were the Howitzers, under the captaincy of Guard Hunter. This is the second game for Lisle Hanna's team, as they defeated the five of Harold Sawyers Friday afternoon in the first game.

Wednesday at 4:15 the Howitzers and the Krupps will clash again. Hanna is the captain of the Krupps and Hunter the captain for the Howitzers. Hunter and Pickens qualified by good playing for some iron crosses.

The lineup of the Krupps is: Hahn and Hanna, forwards; Sable center; DeMors and Palmer, guards.

"LOVEY MINE" GOOD SHOW

The German "goose step" is the funniest part about the home talent film, "Lovey Mine," which was shown at the Fern theater last night for the first time. The "plot" of the picture is couples in all stages of life, representing that love continues from little "kids" to old age.

Amy Clark and Fred Lewis as the old age stage were particularly good. George Palfreyman and Miss Blanche Shipps march down the Wabash station as the morning train comes in, one of the clearest and best of the scenes. All of the settings are local and a credit to F. R. Marcell, photographer.

Miss Besse Scott sings during the film and music is furnished by Maulding's orchestra.

DERBIES FOR H. S. BOYS

Sale of Stiff Hats for "Two Bits" Starts Craze—To Wear Them at Games and On "Pie" Nights.

You can blame all of this high school "derby" hat business upon the Toggery Shop. They were overstocked on a certain kind of stiff hat and advertised them for two-bits.

And forthwith every high school chap who had cherished a secret longing to enclose his brains in felt ever since the day when he pushed his feet down through the first long trousers jammed into that store.

Close to two dozen were fitted and the quarters thrown upon the counter within an hour yesterday. Only two of the hats, which are the flat variety of the popularity of two years ago, remain in the store. And what a compliment to the high school boys that those two are left.

For be it known that no boy in the high school was big headed enough to wear them. One is 7½ and the other 7¼. But wearing the hats went to the heads of some who were fitted within a few hours. For instance:

"E." Phillip Colbert made a "wager" of one real nickel jitney that he could find at least one hair pin in a walk around the square. He was "called" by Donald Roberts. Verne Pickens held stakes and went along as judge.

The hairpin was found, but "Phil" lost his five pennies because Roberts found the hair dresser's accessory. If "Phil" had been an experienced sportsman he would have worded that bet differently.

The boys will wear the hats at athletic contests and on "pie" nights. Some say that all this "foolishment" comes from too much of a pie diet.

The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock. Members of the Tarpley family orchestra will give music before the lecture.

TURKEY IS HIGHER

WET WEATHER CAUSED SCARCITY OF THANKSGIVING BIRD.

RABBITS ARE PLENTIFUL

And It's Patriotic to Destroy Brer Bunny for He Is an Agricultural Pest.

Just as we were all thinking that the wet weather this summer was a thing of the past and had really forgotten about it in the glorious autumn, the "perfectly lovely" days as the girls tell us, along comes an announcement which bowls us over and brings back all the pain and anguish of those dready days and months of drizzling and precipitation.

For most of the little "gobble-gobbles" got wet feet last summer, took cold, and then there was a funeral. And the mortality of turkeys has been so high that the price will be higher. Butchers and poultry men here say that the price will be four or five cents more than last year, which means that 27 cents a pound will be about the average.

But that need not break up the big dinner. Chickens are plentiful and will be about 18 cents, and geese at 20 cents a pound. Farmers who have been asked about the supply of gobblers shook their heads sadly and said that the supply was short.

But, cheer up, get your chin off your vest! "Bunnies" are thicker than ever this year, and will be sold dressed at a very reasonable rate. A good Thanksgiving meat for twenty-five cents, for instance. Why be slaves to tradition which says that one must have turkey?

When that custom was started all that father had to do was to shoulder his blunderbus and go shoot a wild fowl. Why not make Brer Rabbit the national Thanksgiving day meat, when pa can sling his pump gun or repeater through the hollow of his arm and go get several along any country road.

And it would seem good economy too. For the cotton tails eat up lots of garden stuff; they nibble the bark off of young fruit trees in winter, in fact they are rated a pest in most agricultural communities. Some good patriotic citizen might start a "Rabbit for Thanksgiving Dinner" fad.

And the one who started it would probably give in on the night of the 24th and order a Turkey.

TO UNITE PRAYER SERVICES

Rev. W. M. Case Will Tell of His Work Among Mountaineers of North Carolina When a Student.

The prayer meeting congregations of the First Methodist and First Christian churches will unite tomorrow night with the First Presbyterian church, when their pastor, Rev. William Moll Case, will tell of his work among the mountaineers of North Carolina.

It is probable that the First Baptist church will also join in the meeting. The Buchanan Street Methodists have planned for the organization of its "Go Forward" campaign and will be unable to attend.

Mr. Case worked during the summer of 1904 and a month in the winter of 1906 while a student in Yale. A classmate and two University of Virginia men worked with him under H. D. Gallaudet, son of the president of the Gallaudet School for the Deaf in Washington. The leader is now pastor of the First Congregational church in Bridgeport, Conn.

The work was done in Madison county, North Carolina, twenty miles up into the mountains.

WILL SELECT CITY

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE ALREADY GATHERING.

IN WASHINGTON DEC. 7

Leaders of Party Much Interested in Bomb Plots and Wilson's Attitude on One-Term Plank in Platform.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The advance guard of the national Democratic committee, which meets here December 7 to select the time and place for the 1916 Democratic convention, began to arrive here today.

In the group were a number of congressmen. The chief topic of conversation was the probable attitude of the president toward the one-term plank in the 1912 platform of the Democratic party.

The fight for the convention city lies between St. Louis, Chicago and Dallas, according to indications now.

Bomb Plots Interest Also.

Great interest was shown among the men also in the testimony which is being held today by the department of justice concerning the German bomb plots and the conspiracies to destroy American munition plants.

Dr. Goricar, former Austrian consul at San Francisco, who make startling charges against Teutonic representatives last week, and John R. Rathon publisher of the Providence (R. I.) Journal, in which paper the charges were published, answered questions of federal agents today.

Department officials refused to make known, however, where the conference is taking place.

New York, Nov. 16.—Robert Fay, leader of the bomb plotters, who made a confession yesterday, has been stopped by some powerful but unseen and mysterious influence from giving the names of men higher up as he had promised to do yesterday.

IF RETREAT INTO GREECE

England and France Want to Be Sure Soldiers Will Not Be Interred—Germans Re-inforce Bulgarians.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

London, Nov. 16.—German troops have arrived in southern Servia to re-enforce the hard pressed Bulgarians around Veles. Although they have battled gallantly to open the road to Monastir, the Bulgarians have been checked at every turn.

The fighting has been particularly vicious at Veles. Telovo, which has changed hands five times since the beginning of the war in Servia, is now in the possession of the Serbs.

The Bulgarian hold on Uskub is seriously menaced, but with re-enforcements in the south, the Bulgarians may be able to renew a successful offensive against the allies and Serbs.

That such a thought has occurred to the leaders of the French and English armies is shown by the Athens dispatch, which says that the two general staffs are trying to reach an agreement with the government of Greece by which the status of the Anglo-French soldiers may be known in case they are forced over the border.

Great Britain and France desire that their soldiers shall not be interned and disarmed, and more than mere promises must be given by the king to satisfy the allies.

Submarine Bases Found.

Rome, Nov. 16.—Two bases for the operation of the Teutonic submarines have been found on the coast of Crete, according to the Giornaled. Crete is an island belonging to Greece in the Mediterranean.

$4.50 ROUND TRIP FOR GAME

Pullman Car, Running Through, Will Leave Here Wednesday Night—Special May Go in Morning.

The Wabash has quoted a rate of $4.50 for the round trip to Columbia for the Missouri-Kansas foot ball game and the other festivities of Thanksgiving. A special Pullman will be placed on No. 14, leaving Maryville at 9:45 Wednesday night, November 24. The rate for that is $2 a berth for the round trip and two may occupy each berth.

A special train will be run down the Maryville branch Thursday morning, arriving in Columbia at noon. It will leave Maryville at 5 o'clock Thanksgiving morning, if enough notify the agent here that it is wanted. Otherwise it will start at Stanberry. Prof. C. A. Hawkins of the Normal faculty has charge of the arrangements for the Pullman.

Eighteen, the minimum number for which a car will be brought here, has been secured. A car accommodating thirty or thirty-five can be secured if desired, but it will be necessary for those who wish to go to let Professor Hawkins know at once. The car will run straight through to Columbia, arriving there at 8 in the morning.

It will leave about 9 o'clock that night, arriving in Maryville at 6:05 Friday morning. C. L. Brewer, head of athletics of the University of Missouri, announces that 2,000 more tickets have already been sold than at the game in Columbia two years ago. A crowd of 12,000 is expected.

The victory of Missouri's team last Saturday, with Kansas' defeat at the same time, has increased the hope for a good game.

Charity Board Meets Tonight.

The city charity board will meet tonight with representatives of all the churches in the discussion of plans for the winter. The organization of a more permanent and centralized board will probably be the principal subject up for discussion.

To Attend Medical Meeting.

Dr. F. M. Martin left this morning for St. Joseph, where he will join a party and motor to Kansas City, where he will attend a medical meeting which will be held there tonight.

Mrs. Berney Dougan left this morning for St. Joseph, where she will be the guest of friends.

IT MAY NOT NEED AERATION

No Tests of New Supply of Sand Point Water Have Been Made and Double Pumping is Precautionary.

The new sand points on the east side are giving complete satisfaction and no water will be taken from the river in the future. The flow is good and the quality all right. No tests have been made yet to determine the chemical property of the new supply.

Samples will be sent this week to Kansas City for a test, and it may be possible that aeration will not be necessary. The new supply is being sent through the same process as the old until it is sure that aeration is not needed. This causes two pumpings, and it is hoped that tests will show the new supply free from iron and other impurities which make the old process necessary.

ENGLAND WON'T USE ANY CONSCRIPTION

Asquith Announces That It is No Longer Considered Necessary—Bitter Cold On Every Front.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Athens, Nov. 16.—Former Premier Venizelos has abandoned all efforts to force Greece into the war on the side of the allies.

He made this clear in an announcement today in which he said that his followers in the Liberal party would probably take no active part in the general election for the chamber of deputies, which is to be held December 19.

This news comes as a hard blow to the allies, whose hope had been that the king and his supporters would be overthrown. The strength of the Greek king and the followers of Constantine is thus shown.

REED FOR SENATOR.

In all the Democratic rally meetings held during the months of October and November, Senator James A. Reed has been a leading figure. He has been enthusiastically received at all these conventions and his speeches ring with the laudations of President Wilson and the national administration. His exceptional powers of oratory and logic and his ability and resourcefulness in debate immediately brought him to the front along with that other distinguished Missouri Senator, Wm. J. Stone, both of whom are recognized as leaders in oratory and debate in the senate.

Senator Reed did the heavy work on several of the special commissions to delve into unlawful monopoly. He was a prime mover that put the dynamite under trust rottenness that caused the explosion of their disgraceful methods in the control of corrupt political machinery which grew up in the republican party under the system of protecting and legislating for the special interests at the expense of the people. He is a ceaseless worker—the harder the problem the better he loves to work at it. Sen. Kern, the Democratic leader in the Senate, speaking of him said: "It is claimed by some that at times he is against the Democratic organization. Nothing could be further from the truth. The fact is, he is some times ahead in the lead. He is one of the most useful, able and influential members of the Senate. There is no man in the Senate whom the opposition to Democratic policies and principles so greatly fear."

The above is a most worthy commendation of the junior senator by the Senate leader. We have confidence in the senator that he has conscientiously performed his duty to the best of his ability and the people appreciate the splendid work he has done as heretofore outlined, and hence we are impelled to give the senator our support. We believe that his record as a first termer and the splendid work that he has accomplished entitles him to be his own successor and should appeal to the democracy of the state as entitling him to a re-nomination without question.—Chillicothe Constitution. ..

STATE POULTRY SHOW FREE

Joplin Will Entertain Missouri Association Exhibit and Admit Public To Increase Interest.

Poultry breeders will have an exceptional opportunity at the Missouri State Poultry Show this year to place their fowls before a very large number of people who are just getting into the poultry work.

Through co-operation with the Commercial Club of Joplin, the Missouri State Poultry Association has decided to throw the show room doors open to the general public, and the Commercial Club has guaranteed to furnish a building suitable for housing 5,000 birds, and also will pay part of the operating expenses.

This arrangement has resulted from influence brought to bear by some of the leading poultrymen of that community, who state that the free admission will result in attracting thousands of people from their trade territory, which is supplied with numerous steam and interurban lines running in all directions.

The same poultrymen believe that the free admission will result in developing the poultry industry in that field, to such an extent that the gross income will exceed the output of the mines in Jasper county. Wheat is the largest wealth producer of Jasper county farms, but the combined city and farm poultry flocks produce a greater wealth than the wheat crop. Unfortunately large numbers of the farms have only mongrel fowls, and no doubt the exhibition of several thousand beautiful pure fowls will exert a strong influence on the visitors to the poultry show to dispose of their mongrel flocks and introduce some variety of pure bred poultry. The exhibitors thus will be in the position of presenting their birds to the largest number of prospective purchasers, at the minimum of expenses.

Every breeder who has any surplus stock for sale during the coming winter, should plan to exhibit some of his or her best specimens at the Missouri State Poultry Show which will be held in Joplin, December 7-11. Entries will close November 29. Premium lists can be had by addressing the Secretary Fred Crosby, Mountain Grove, Mo.

The same cooping arrangements have been made for the coming show as were used at the last show, which was the classiest show ever held west of the Mississippi river, and drew praie from every exhibitor and visitor.

There will be numerous educational features, including a series of chalk talks by Judge W. H. Card, secretary of the Rhode Island Red club of America. Judge Card will pass on all of the Red classes and will be at the show room during the entire week to help any breeders who want information on mating and breeding that variety.

Prof. G. D. Horton, Missouri's poultry doctor, and bacteriologist at the Missouri State Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, will arrange an extensive exhibit showing proper way to treat various diseases and will give several lectures on prevention of poultry diseases. This is a new phase of educational work at poultry shows which will be very interesting and instructive.

Other prominent poultry breeders will give talks each afternoon and evening during the show.

The Missouri State Poultry Association is the largest state poultry association in the world, numbering about 5,000 members, and it is the desire of the association to increase the membership to 7,500 before the first of December, for " in union there is strength," and the larger the membership, the more good the association can do for poultry interests in this state. The annual dues are only 50c per year, and the benefits include listing in the annual year book, chances to compete at about 60 poultry shows in Missouri for special membership prizes, and numerous other features. Fred Crosby, Mountain Grove, is secretary-treasurer, and will be glad to receive new or renewal memberships and answer any communications regarding the association or show.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN SUFFERS 15 YEARS

Mrs. Rosa B. Bennett of 2606B Olive street, St. Louis, Mo., was ill with stomach troubles for nearly fifteen years. She had a great deal of medical attention and took many treatments. She was advised to undergo an operation by one specialist.

Instead she took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and found swift relief. She wrote:

"I was a sufferer for about fifteen years and I tried everything. I doctored with different doctors, and each one would give my trouble a different name. One said that I would never be any better until I was operated on, and another one said I had ulcers of the stomach. I could get no relief.

"I took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. "Now I can't praise your medicine enough."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. PARLE'S PHARMACY

FOREIGNER ON OUR TRAVEL.

Says American Distance Needs an Antidote.

"The first thing that impresses me, of course, is what all visitors to your country talk about—your vast distances."

The speaker was H. E. Smith of John Haddon and company, London. He had just come away from the San Francisco Fair and had a fresh impression of the importance we give to travel methods, which are the first thing to impress any visitor to this country.

"We talk of beautiful spots abroad—but can one say that anything here is a 'spot?' However, there are always your automobiles."

The visitor then went on to say that present-day activities justified the old saying that for every condition there was a counteracting influence—and that the influence which cancels distance in this country is our wonderful modes of travel.

"Of all these modes the motor-car commands the greatest admiration and since I have made a study of tires, I feel that many automobiles owe efficiency to Firestone Tires."

POST ORCHARD, LATEST IDEA

Byron Croy of Near Maryville, Writes to the Iowa Homestead on That Subject.

Byron Croy, living northwest of Maryville, has an article in the Iowa Homestead this week. It follows:

Long ago I was fully convinced that a good permanent fence was by far the cheapest but how to obtain this within reason was a problem that I spent many years in solving, and as it has proven out so good in my experience I have no hesitancy in passing it along.

Nature left our own community to get along as best it could in solving the fence question, as she forgot to place any kind of material at our disposal, and as the shipped-in material was very high, while the posts were of a quality that would hardly justify the setting, to say nothing of paying for them.

There was only two ways left to reduce the cost of fencing, and that was to make the fence better and more permanent. While the initial cost might be slightly increased the term of usefulness would be increased in a greater ratio and thereby effect a saving. The other way was to produce as much of it on the place as possible.

I decided to produce the post and buy woven wire of some kind, as that was the only practicable fence for us. With that in mind I prepared a strip of ground sixty feet wide on three sides of my buildings and feed lot, with the open side to the south. This was laid off in rows with a corn lister, and every two feet in each row a one-year-old hedge sprout was planted. The first year they were given four cultivations and two the next year, as their growth was so rapid as to prohibit more cultivation.

It required about ten years' time for those plants to arrive at sufficient size to make posts, and if I allow the protection that I have derived to balance the rent of ground these posts would cost less than 10 cents each when set in the ground.

Roughly speaking, there is about one and three-quarters acres of ground in this plot of land, and it required 8,000 trees to plant it, and they cost 30 cents per hundred. I have followed the practice of cutting out the most crooked ones and letting the straight ones grow for barn poles, crib poles and telephone poles. However, the crooked ones grow near the edge, as the growth is too dense to permit them to grow otherwise.

There are now more posts than plants, as almost every plant made two, either in height or by throwing out two or more sprouts. I have heard a great deal of criticism of hedge, owing to their checking and loosing the staple. That is because they are not properly handled. They should be seasoned for a year or more. Leave them under the shade of a tree and at the end of a year the bark will slip from them and you have and unyielding, that will not split and lost staples, and when properly set a post that is smooth of surface, stiff will last for more than one generation.

When constructing a fence I use hedge post set in the ground five feet and the excavation filled with cement at the corners, using the vertical brace and number nine wire to hold them firm. For the line post I prefer to have every tenth post steel, as this is good insurance against lightning, setting them sixteen feet apart and about thirty inches deep.

At the bottom I place a twenty-inch strand of American wire, six-inch mesh, then leave a five-inch space and stretch another strand of twenty-inch wire, twelve-inch mesh, between these two woven wires. Stretch one barbed wire, also one six inches above the top strand of woven wire and this completes a four-foot fence.

Some will say, "Why not use one forty-eight-inch woven wire?" My method is a little cheaper. Then again if hogs slacken the bottom wire it can be loosened and restretched without bothering with the top. Also the same may be said of the top if it is slackened by cattle or horses, and it makes no difference how long a fence of this type is used and restretched it will never become "baggy" in appearance. Also have the six-inch mesh at the bottom where it is needed and dispenses of that useless weight at the top.

By watching the wire market and anticipating one's needs there are usually times when one can buy wire at quite a saving, and in this way lessen the cost of fencing

Time Copy.

Thirty years ago we used to work on a paper where the editor kept a spindle on which he used to hang things to be used as fillers. This was called time copy. Much of this time copy was devoted to articles abusing the Turks, and particularly their Sultan. It was popular stuff and never got the editor in trouble. Gradually, however, it has undermined the Sultan's popularity and the man who was once the hero of many a tale of the Arabian nights, is now fairly well discredited in the civilized world.

In the newspaper offices now, Good Roads are filling the same useful and distinguished place which once was the Sultan's own—W. A. White.

MISSOURI VERY PARTICULAR

State Maintains Stronger Barriers Against Tubercular Cattle Than Any Other.

In the issue of September 18, 1915, The Country Gentleman, Philadelphia, the most widely circulated and oldest agricultural journal in the world under the general heading, "Live Items about Livestock," and subhead, "Fight on Tuberculosis," says:

"Missouri maintains stronger barriers against the entrance of tuberculous cattle within her borders than any other state in the country. Under regulations inaugurated recently by Dr. D. F. Luckey, head of the veterinary department of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, no cattle can come into the state except for pasturing, feeding or immediate slaughter, without having passed successfully the tuberculin test. The test must be made by a veterinarian approved by the state veterinary department. Missouri does not stop here, however. To impress him with the seriousness of the state's requirements it asks the shipper who sends cattle into the state for pasturing, feeding or immediate slaughter to make this agreement:

'I solemnly swear that the cattle will be used for pasturing, feeding, or immediate slaughter, and not for dairy or breeding purposes, without first having them tuberculin tested by a veterinarian designated by the state veterinarian. I hereby agree to pay to the state veterinarian the sum of five hundred dollars in case of any breach of this agreement.'

"The Missouri veterinary department maintains inspectors at the St. Louis, St. Joseph and Kansas City stockyards to inspect all cattle entering the state from these markets. All animals which appear to be intended for breeding purposes, such as bulls and springer cows, are not permitted to go into Missouri without undergoing the tuberculin test. The state inspectors make a charge of fifty cents a head for the tuberculin test. Test of the agents of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, which are made at markets without charge, are accepted by the state.

"'Missouri must keep tuberculous cattle out,' Doctor Luckey said in commending on his new regulations. 'There have been a few violations of the new rules, partly because some shippers have become accustomed to signing any paper to obtain the free movement of their cattle. If these rules do not work satisfactorily Missouri will insist on the tuberculin test on all cattle entering her borders.'"—From the Missouri Association for Relief and Control of Tuberculosis.

A WAR ZONE PERIL

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH.

"At last!" breathed my wife, my Bertha, my bride of a month, with a sigh of vast relief.

"It has been hard work," I returned, and glad and relieved as well, "but we seem to be bound for the safety line this time."

For a week our honeymoon had been interrupted. With many other incautious and distressed tourists we had been marooned, so to speak, on an island on the river near the Austrian town of Vasre. We had been practically prisoners and subjected to the most rigorous investigation. Now we had been liberated and taken over to the mainland railroad depot. I noticed that a number of spies kept us well in view on the train bound for the frontier.

All would have been well if it had not been for one of Bertha's whims. Yes, she was capricious, and as well jealous and all that. The crisis of fear and anxiety past, womanlike her mind fell back to matters trivial.

"I saw some lovely grapes on the fruit stand in the waiting room. Won't you get me some?"

And I, of course, hastened to meet her desires. I did not know it, but as I passed from the train platform to the depot Bertha was out of the coach and after me. A sudden appetite for some of those small golden-hued Messina oranges she had noticed supplemented the craving for the grapes. Thus it was that as I reached the waiting room Bertha was not thirty feet away.

I half halted as a quick cry sounded. It proceeded from a fair young girl not more than eighteen years of age. She was penned in at one corner of the room by two soldiers in uniform. It was easy to discern that she was under arrest. She was flashing-eyed, agile, so much the latter that as she lifted out her arms apparently towards me with a wild imploring gesture and the soldiers strove to press her back upon the bench where she had been seated, she nimbly dodged

Her own were instantly about my neck, her lips pressed my own. She was murmuring words of rare endearment in soft Italian. I caught the word "brother." I knew enough of the language to comprehend that she was whispering brokenly an appeal to "send it." What and when I vainly tried to guess out ere the two guardians were with us. They tore her roughly, almost brutally away from me. The crowd gathering around dispersed. I was very much embarassed and hastened on my mission. One of the soldiers pointed to me and spoke to a low-visaged, squint-eyed man at his side. I barely noticed this man then. I recognized him later, as fate willed it, in a signally sensational way.

I procured the fruit I had been sent after and returned to the train. I noted that my wife looked at me strangely. She semed out of breath and flustered. I placed the bag of fruit in her lap and threw off the light overcoat I had been wearing. Just then, discovering my cigarette case empty, I went out to fill it.

As I returned the train was just getting ready to start. As I entered the car I noticed that Bertha held an open sheet of paper in her hand, closely written over. It seemed to puzzle her. Then I saw that the seat directly behind was occupied by the squint-eyed man I had seen with the soldiers. He was leaning forward and staring fixedly at the written page. There was an evil gloating expression to his face I could not construe. Then, as Bertha caught sight of me, with a sudden flush and a perturbed manner she hastily thrust the sheet into her handbag.

Just outside the seat in the aisle was a crumpled envelope. It had apparently contained the sheet Bertha had been reading. I noticed it and intended to secure it, but I took a moment or two to arrange some parcels in the rack. When I looked for it again it was gone.

Some mystery was afloat. The thought had taken possession of my mind and I could not get rid of the idea. Bertha was strangely perverse. She acted like a person laboring under some intense unnatural strain and striving to conceal it. She would not meet my glance. When I started a subject of conversation she was abrupt in her replies.

Then she complained of a headache, turned her face away, using the cushioned top of the car seat as a pillow, and feigned to sleep. I could tell from her nervous movements, however, that she was wide awake.

When we reached terminus those of our group were isolated from the regular passengers and underwent inspection in a room of the depot, each passed along as credentials were exhibited and examined. It chanced that we came last. As I handed our passport to the official inspector, to my surprise a man stepped between us. It was the squint-eyed man. He threw out his hand quickly, quite forcibly, snatched the handbag from my wife's wrist, transferred it to the inspector with some rapid half-whispered words and next caught the arm of my wife, with the words:

"You are under arrest."

I was indignant and aroused. I stepped forward to strike the miscreant, to wrest my wife from his coarse grasp. The inspector put out his hand sternly.

"Desist," he spoke in a precise, impressive way. "It is the law."

"Wherefore?" I challenged hotly.

"The lady is apprehended as a spy," was the calm rejoinder.

"And the proof the letter," explained the squint-eyed man, "the letter in her handbag."

Bertha was quivering with dread. The inspector waved me back as he and the other man led her towards an adjoining room. Its door crashed shut against me. I was overwhelmed with mystery and distress. I paced the floor distractedly. It must have been fully half an hour before the inspector came out.

"The lady is your wife?" he inquired with great gravity.

"Yes," I assented. "Will you explain, please—"

"Seditious correspondence," spoke the official tersely. "She is the possessor of a warning letter from a spy, an Italian woman. I shall have to detain you as well, for the lady declares she cannot even read the letter. She found it in your overcoat, she says—"

"Ha!"

The word burst in a quick gasp unrestrainedly from my lips. Enlightenment flashed into my mind instantaneously. Never had I talked so fast! I knew what detention would mean among these suspicious emissaries of a government prejudiced against all foreigners. Vehemently I insisted that the impetuous greeting of the prisoner back the line had been a clever ruse to cover her secret delivery to me of a letter she hoped I would mail to an accomplice.

I was fortunate in convincing the inspector of the truth of my statements, which he proceeded to verify by telegraph. In fact, he himself told me, as we were allowed to rejoin my fellow refugees, that the possession of the incriminating missive would have meant serious trouble had I not guessed out the solution of the mystery.

"I was jealous, madly jealous! I fancied you knew that woman!" sobbed out my contrite Bertha.

"Poor lady!" I answered. "She was handsome enough to make any woman jealous."

MOTHER! GIVE CHILD "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF TONGUE IS COATED.

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Clean Little Liver and Bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt. 16 & 15

THE WOMEN BUY THE AUTOS

Motor Car Builder Says Cars Which Appeal to Feminine Tastes Sell Most Readily.

"Women are important factors in the purchase of automobiles today," states Elwood Haynes, pioneer automobile builder of Kokomo, Indiana.

"Although the man generally pays the bill, it is the woman who makes the final decision in many cases of purchasing a car. She insists on easy control, easy gear shifting and capability of being throttled down to a slow speed even as low as one mile an hour.

"The car of easy control immediately attracts a woman as one suiting her needs if she is to do any driving. Designers of present day models, looking to this aim, have embodied many ideas that accomplish the desired end.

"Cars that are capable of being throttled down to a low speed are especially meeting favor with the fair sex. The average woman does not care to travel along at an excessive speed, but would rather move leisurely, see her friends and acquaintances and have them see her. Popular decision rules, therefore, in favor of a car having a speed as low as one mile an hour.

"Naturally, easy shifting would appeal to the woman if she is to do any driving. So the woman of today in helping to make a choice of cars is becoming an expert in discrimination and the car that wins her favor must meet her demands."

Bought Land in Texas.

J. D. Frank of this city returned Monday evening from a southern business trip through the Trinity valley of East Texas. He reports a very pleasant and profitable trip, and that he has purchased a section of land near Onalaska, in Pork county.

This is the second visit to east Texas Mr. Frank has made during the past month. During the latter part of October he accompanied an excursion to the Trinity valley and became somewhat enthusiastic over the apparent exceptional opportunities for the northern settler, and to be thoroughly satisfied in the matter, he made this last visit unaccompanied by any representatives, going over a different route than usually taken by the regular excursions, which gave him ample opportunity to become acquainted with "both sides of the question."

Mr. Frank reports business conditions as good, and that the fertile timbered belt forming the Trinity valley is attracting a very desirable class of homeseekers.

Mrs. Carrie Miller, who has been the guest at the L. W. Miller home in Barnard, left Monday evening for St. Joseph, where she will be the guest of her son, Dr. Gene Miller.
